I really had an interesting weekend. One of my favorite people in the whole wide world came home to visit me. My BIG little brother we like to call him the Photo Guy he has a really great talent that he shares with the World everyday over on his blog <http://erikumphery.com/blog/>

I also meet with three of my star coaching clients I actually decided to have dinner at a really nice hotel more on why I was there on a later post. To make a long story short I had a blackened salmon, french fries, veggies and 3 ginger ales I must have been thirsty or they just kept putting too much ice in my glass. The food was great but I think I had an allergic reaction to the veggies, I had an interesting evening I'll just leave it at that.

Back to Business. I received two really good questions from someone that got their hands on the E- Manual. Even though I was sick as a DOG I still managed to answer them check out the video below!
