The "King" James Brown takes Wholesaling Real Estate Training and Cashes in BIG! {WATCH VIDEOS BELOW}

What's going on Flop 2 Flippers hope you all are enjoying your holiday weekend. I wish all of you a Happy Easter! A few months ago I meet a gentleman by the name of James Brown at one of our real estate trainings here in Baltimore, MD. James explained to me that he had been to several real estate trainings and even taken a few real estate classes held by some of the BIG names in our industry but was unable to actually grasp all of the concepts they were teaching. I too could relate to James not really being able to grasp and understand all of the concepts early on and how I felt I needed a local expert to guide me through to my first deal. We probably all can relate.

During the real estate training James explained to me his need for a coach and how he wanted to take my real estate classes to get his aspiring real estate business off the ground. I knew from day 1 this guy was an ACTION TAKER if you watched the video I posted a few weeks ago you can see how his phone was ringing off the hook with motivated sellers. See some people like going to real estate trainings taking real estate investment classes to take a bunch of notes and not take any action. James is the exact opposite he got a real estate coach and learned the strategies and concepts that work in his market place to become a successful real estate investor.
